CONCERNS OF THE DISTRICT

John B. Brady Named to Succeed the Late Thos. B. Entwisle.

THE DISTRICT ENGINEER WORK

Capt. Fieberger, Assistant to Commissioner Powell, Submits His Annual Report—Some Important Suggestions—The Fire Engine House Misconstruction.

The Commissioners settled the question of filling the vacancy in the office of building inspector, as confidentially prophesied in yesterday's Times, by naming John B. Brady for the position. Mr. Brady will qualify on Saturday. He was the recipient of numerous congratulations during the day, and gracefully and feelingly acknowledged the same with thanks.

From the expressions of citizens who have commented upon the appointment, which may be taken as a fair index of general sentiment, the selection has given universal satisfaction. Mr. Brady's promotion is a step in the civil service reform line; he was the choice of leading architects and builders throughout the city; was endorsed by the Federation of Labor, and his record has been such as to insure to the public the services of a competent inspector.

Mr. Brady was born in this city, and is in the forty-fifth year of his age. He has, by arduous study and application, made himself the master of his profession. He began business life with Baldwin Brothers, and was later associated with S. T. Morsell, at present a member of the board of excise, and subsequently was in the employ of Charles Edmonston, with whom he remained until appointed to a position with the building inspector, a little more than eleven years ago. That appointment was made without solicitation upon his part, and so, it may be said, was the present one. Mr. Brady was in the position of an applicant only in the sense that he announced his purpose to accept it if it were tendered.

The new inspector said yesterday that the selection of his successor as assistant inspector was entirely in the hands of the Commissioners, except in the fact that they should be asked for suggestions. It was a matter to which he had personally given no thought as yet and nothing would be done, he inferred, until after his induction into his new position.

The office of assistant is of as much importance in many respects as that of the chief. The occupant of the position must be equipped with full knowledge of architecture and know the technical details of engineering, as applied to building, and be able to make his own computations in proving the correctness of any plans that may be presented. It is not at all probable that the appointment will be made from the ranks of the present office force. The Commissioners will, it is believed, select a man with the necessary qualifications from the outside.

Assistant Engineer Commissioner Fieberger filed his annual report with the board yesterday. He alludes to the fact that all block asphalt now used in the District are supplied from a local factory, by means of which the price of the product has been materially decreased. The composition has also been improved. Total amount of asphalt laid last year was $6,395 square yards.

The passage by Congress at its last session of a provision requiring all sewer and water connections to be made before paving is done is strongly commended, as preventing useless cutting of new pavements and preserving them. A similar provision should be made as to underground conduits for electric wires, especially for District use.

He refers with regret to the fact that appropriations for street paving have been materially decreased, the current appropriation being less than at any time since the formation of the present District government. He calls attention to the necessity of securing larger appropriations for the improvement of suburban streets, and also for a slight increase in the fund for grading streets and roads.

For the paving of alleys and repairing sidewalks under the permit system, about $108,000 was expended last year. The mileage of county streets and roads under supervision is about 300 miles. The opening of new suburban streets has diverted a large portion of the appropriation from the ordinary county roads. In view of the fact that a large portion of the suburban streets are unpaved an increase in the appropriation is needed.

The total of bridges under supervision is sixty-five, with a total length of one and three-fourths miles. Many are old and build of wood, and require constant repairing. These should be replaced with more modern structures. The sum of $2,773.31 was expended in repairs to bridges, about one-half of which was devoted to putting a new floor in the Aqueduct Bridge, and another item was the purchase of material for a new steel bridge at N street, over the James Creek Canal.

The total area of sub-divisions recorded during the year was 26.9 acres, and included West Takoma, Ingleside, Cleveland Park, Schoutzen Park, Connecticut Avenue Heights, part of Youngsborough American University Heights, and Deanwood.

The work of the parking commission has reached the point where the further planting of trees is almost prohibited by lack of appropriation. If there is one feature of the National Capital, Capt. Fieberger says, which appeals to the admiration of visitors, it is the magnificent trees that line its streets and avenues, and he urges that the appropriation be increased. It is recommended that some eminent landscape engineer be procured to prepare plans for the improvement of Rock Creek Park.

In regard to overhead wires Capt. Fieberger says that as the system is not likely to be abandoned for some time he would suggest that legislation be sought to correct some of its defects.

He says: "If the police powers of the Commissioners were extended so as to give them control over the maintenance and erection of all poles, and the companies were compelled to unite their lines where possible, much of the complaint against the obstruction of streets and alleys by poles should be avoided. In the center of the city, upon such streets as G, F, and Pennsylvania avenue, between Seventh and Fifteenth streets, and the intersecting streets, the business must warrant the companies putting all main lines underground, and they should be compelled to do so, while in the unpaved or sparsely built-up sections I believe overhead wires should be allowed, with poles in the alleys, if possible."

The hearing mentioned in yesterday's Times was given by the commissioners to Contractor Thomas and others interested in the adjustment of the responsibility for the misfit of the new Northeast engine house. Mr. von Heila coincides with the contractor in placing the blame upon Surveyor Forsythe. Mr. Brady, the building inspector, expressed the opinion, however, in the conference that a careful builder who always verified the survey prior to the commencement of structure, and his judgment, he says, will be endorsed by contractors everywhere. He is of the opinion that the lines should be verified by careful inspection it would have been shown whether or not an error had been made in the markings, and this is the duty of every builder, as a precautionary measure.

Mr. Thomas declares that he laid the foundation exactly according to the instructions and by the aid of a police officer, who late building inspector. The case is with the Commissioners for their decision.

Attorney Fugh asked the Commissioners several days ago for the duties of a policeman for duty at his office and to take charge of it and assist in the clerical duties during the attorney's necessary absence in the courtroom. Commissioner Thomas said he would have the detail made if it should be found that a man can be spared for the purpose, and the application was referred to Mayor Moore.

New York, Nov. 19, 1894.

MESSRS. H. FRIEDLANDER & BRO., Gentlemen:

In response to your favor of 15th inst., contrary to our original purpose, we have concluded, in view of the peculiar situation in which we are placed, to accept your proposition, fifty-seven (57) cents on the dollar on the inventoried cost of our stock, less 10 per cent. for cash in ten days. Per D.

Once again have the fortunes of trade favored the brave—Jordan, Sullivan & Co., the great wholesale clothiers, 550 Great Jones Street, New York, owing to the death of Mr. Sullivan, which occurred October 24, decided some weeks ago to retire from business, and with this object in view advertised for bids for their mammoth high-grade stock of Men's, Boys', and Children's Clothing—The wide-spread reputation of this old and respected concern, together with the well-known high character of their merchandise, was sufficient to enlist the earnest consideration of every representative retail merchant in this country when it became known that this stock was for sale. To many of these the magnitude of the stock was an insurmountable obstacle—and as the result proves, we have outclassed the balance.
